Applications are sought for the position of

Chaplain

Woolaning Homeland Christian College is a community-managed school situated on the western boundary of Litchfield National Park; a partnership between the NTCSA, Woolaning Community Inc., other communities in the region and the Commonwealth and NT governments. It commenced operation in July 2002 and presently caters for up to 70 students.

WHCC is a residential college offering education and training to Indigenous secondary-aged students. We are looking for a suitably qualified person to fill the role of part-time Chaplain at the College (0.4 load), possibly living on site, particularly of this part-time load is increased to full-time or near full-time if an additional role were to be taken on by the successful applicant.

Terms of service are negotiable, as are travel arrangements. This position is grant-funded to the end of 2011 with the possibility of extending beyond.
